CV	Marina Grbeša, MSC in Psychology, has been employed as a lecturer at the Academy of Arts and Culture in Osijek since March 2025, where she participates in teaching courses in the field of psychology. She began her professional career in the field of organizational psychology in Osijek, focusing on the processes of selection and recruitment of candidates for various positions, after which she continued her career in Dublin, Ireland. During her many years of international work, she specialized in the social welfare sector, providing support to people with intellectual disabilities and autism spectrum disorders, and working on the complex issue of recovery of adults who survived childhood sexual abuse. Her academic and professional work has been strongly shaped by continuous training in the field of mental health, with a special emphasis on working with trauma and neurodiversity. She was educated in the field of neurofeedback and specific interventions for working with people with ADHD and autism, and she also completed introductory training in constructivist psychotherapy. Through her teaching work, she strives to integrate rich clinical and practical experience with theoretical concepts of psychology, while promoting the importance of understanding psychological well-being and providing professional support within different social and educational contexts.
